

The Aboriginal Housing Management Association (AHMA) is proud to celebrate its 30th anniversary, marking three decades of leadership, advocacy, and collaboration in advancing safe, affordable, and culturally grounded housing for Indigenous peoples across British Columbia.

Since its founding, AHMA has played a central role in strengthening Indigenous housing providers, influencing public policy, and fostering cross-sector partnerships that respond to the unique housing needs of Indigenous communities. Over the past 30 years, AHMA's work has contributed to improved housing outcomes, increased sector capacity, and stronger connections between housing, health, social services, and community well-being.

The 30th anniversary event brings together Indigenous housing providers, First Nations, sector partners, government representatives, and allies to reflect on AHMA's journey, celebrate collective achievements, and look ahead to the future of Indigenous housing. The event also highlights the importance of collaboration, innovation, and Indigenous-led solutions in addressing ongoing housing challenges.

"AHMA's 30th anniversary is not only a milestone for our organization, but for the Indigenous housing sector as a whole," said AHMA CEO, Margaret Pfoh. "This celebration recognizes the leadership of Indigenous housing providers and the partners who have stood alongside us in advancing housing justice, self-determination, and community well-being."

Thank You to Our Event Sponsors

AHMA gratefully acknowledges the generous support of the following sponsors, whose contributions help make this milestone celebration possible:

- BC Non-Profit Housing Association (BCNPHA), a longstanding partner supporting the growth and sustainability of non-profit and Indigenous housing providers across British Columbia.
- Cooperative Housing Federation of BC (CHFBC), which advances inclusive, community-led housing solutions through advocacy, education, and sector collaboration.
- Van Mar Constructors, whose experience in delivering complex construction projects supports the development of high-quality, community-focused housing.
- Station One Architects, recognized for their commitment to thoughtful, socially responsible design that responds to community needs and place.
- Prism Engineering, a leader in sustainable building systems and energy-efficient solutions that contribute to long-term housing resilience.
- Real Estate Foundation of British Columbia, which invests in initiatives that advance social, environmental, and community well-being across the province.
- Snaptique, the sponsor of our photo feature at the event. Since 2013, they've provided photo booths for events big and small, corporate and private, with 27 different booth options. They are the best photo booth rental company in Toronto, Ottawa, and Vancouver.
- Miller Titerle + Company, providing trusted services to organizations in the non-profit and housing sectors.
- Central City Foundation, supporting innovative approaches to housing, health, and social outcomes for people experiencing vulnerability.

Their commitment reflects a shared dedication to advancing Indigenous housing, strengthening communities, and supporting Indigenous-led solutions across BC.

Sponsorship opportunities remain available until April 28. Organizations interested in supporting AHMA's 30th anniversary celebration and demonstrating their commitment to Indigenous housing are encouraged to get involved.
